

95% of individuals put in Kansas
Prisons return to Local Communities!

Every month, approximately 125 adults released from Kansas State Correctional facilities, return to Sedgwick County neighborhoods to live, work, and in too many instances, re-offend.

The Sedgwick County Re-Entry Program gives us a chance to make society safer by helping individuals leaving prison to make a successful return to our neighborhoods.

By working together, we can reduce the rate of recidivism in Sedgwick County.

Almost 50% of people released from Kansas Prisons have returned to prison, often because they did not get the help they needed.

We are working to fight this trend by bringing together volunteers JUST LIKE YOU from across the community.

SEDGWICK COUNTY RE-ENTRY

Individuals leave Kansas State Prisons with supervision and re-entry plans that will help them:

- Be accountable for their actions in the community
- Find safe places to live
- Get training so they can find and keep jobs
- Get needed medical and mental health services
- Safely reconnect with their families and other helpful support networks

They are your neighbors.

They are members of your church.

The people you pass on the street everyday.

Help increase the safety of your family and the community by supporting crime-free lives.

The mission of the Sedgwick County Re-Entry Program is to provide Kansas offenders the tools necessary to ensure a successful re-entry into the community. We will accomplish this by identifying the criminogenic risk and the needs of high-risk offenders, and addressing them through a comprehensive release plan. We will promote pro-social cognitive processes with program participants; improve opportunities for permanent and stable housing; improve opportunities for pre-release treatment and mental health assessment, post-release access to services; and improve rate of employment.

We strive to achieve this through effective networking with community resources, entities within the Kansas Department of Corrections and family involvement.
